County school district to move central office

BY TRACI BONNEY

The county school district is about to lose its central office.

Superintendent Myrna Bourgeois told the board of supervisors at a Thursday workshop meeting she and her staff must vacate their current office at Stennis Air Park by October 1, so the Port and Harbor Commission can make the building available as a terminal for anticipated passenger service.

Bourgeois said she needs enough office space for 10 people, their equipment and furniture, and that she prefers the office to be located so she can travel to any school in the district in 20 to 30 minutes.

The board asked Chancery Clerk Mike Nease to check into possible locations for a new office.

VO-TECH CENTER

Bourgeois also spoke to the board about the vocational-technical school which once belonged to Pearl River Community College but was turned over last year to the county school district.

Of the 11 items on a 1989-90 list concerning the condition of the vo-tech center, only the roof repair had been accomplished, Bourgeois said.

She asked that the supervisors investigate where the rest of the money went that was allocated by the county for capital improvements and

Supervisors consider change in county ambulance service

BY TRACI BONNEY

The board of supervisors considered a change in county ambulance service Thursday.

The board held a workshop meeting with John Rester of Mobile Medic to discuss the possibility of providing a second ambulance for the north end of the county.

Ladner emphasized the board is satisfied with the company's current service to the south end of the county, then asked if Mobile Medic could furnish the ambulance at no additional cost. Rester said it could not.

Alton "Dolph" Kellar explained the board had asked to speak with Rester because another ambulance service had proposed a contract that would provide two vehicles at the same cost as the one Mobile Medic normally provides.

Kellar said his concern is the response time on calls in the upper part of the county; he said it can take an ambulance up to 30 minutes or more to respond to a call in the rural areas.

Concerning the county's possible change to another ambulance service, Rester cautioned the board to be sure of the quality of service before signing a contract. He explained Mobile Medic's self-imposed standards require each ambulance to have a paramedic and the appropriate medical equipment for initial medical treatment.

He told the board a paramedic has the highest possible level of emergency training and certification in the profession. He said other ambulance companies may not provide such service, but may instead have an Emergency Medical Technician, sometimes one certified only on the basic level.

As to response time, Rester told Kellar Mobile Medic has a reciprocal agreement with AAA, which operates in Pearl

Perot fever

Bay voter's enthusiasm leads to petition circulation

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Andrew Johnson of Bay St. Louis is circulating a petition in Hancock County for the candidacy of H. Ross Perot for President.

"We are not just trying to get enough," he explained, "but to show support."

Johnson is the 20-year-old son of the Reverend Dr. Arthur Everitt Johnson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church.

This is his first presidential election, and in the spirit of civic responsibility, he claims to have made an informed decision.

"A friend and I were at the Mall shopping," he related, "when we saw this man soliciting signatures and selling bumper stickers in support of Perot.

"The man's name was Wayne Cowey. He is an insurance salesman and the Gulf Coast representative for the Perot campaign. We spoke with him for a time and my friend purchased a bumper sticker for a dollar.

"After that first meeting, I kept thinking, who is this man Perot? So I decided to do some research on him.

"Working in a bookstore gave me some advantage, for here I found four books about Perot.

"The one I felt was least biased was Ken Follett's "On Wings of Eagles," the account of Perot's organizing the rescue of his employees in the Middle East.

The author really acts as a psychotherapist by giving you a view of Perot which reveals all his human sides. The entire book reeks of reality.

"I did all of this, because before I gave my time, I wanted to be sure. You know you can give money away and make more. But your time is the most valuable thing you have, for it can never be replaced.

"I trust him (Perot)," he stated. "I have studied his life and there are no inconsistencies.

"I believe Perot to be a man of action.

"Like my father says, 'Many people come to me with great ideas, but when you ask who will do the work, they back out.'

"Perot has demonstrated he

Waveland Housing Authority awarded $522,550 grant

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Department of Housing & Urban Development (HUD) announced the Waveland Housing Authority is among 21 Mississippi cities that will share in $10.9 million in grants.

Karen Ladner, director, reported, $522,550 will be received by the Waveland agency. The funds will be used for improvements in the 75 units.

First on Ladner's list of things to do, will be the remodeling of eight units. To compare with federally mandated handicap accessibility requirements, units for the hearing impaired and handicapped will be redesigned.

Ladner said three units will be equipped with special features addressing the needs of the hearing impaired, such as smoke alarms and door bell devices which signal with blinking lights.

Five units require extensive changes, such as kitchen and bath cabinets which sit close to the floor, ramps for entrance and exit, cemented paths for access to clothing lines and bathroom fixture replacements. Estimated repair costs are $59,150.

The Housing Authority units are divided among three sites throughout the city.

Site one, located along Herlihy Street and Camille Circle, contains 48 units within 19 buildings. Site two is located along Waveland Avenue and Rue De La Salle Street and contains 14 units. Site three, located along Russell Drive, off of Old Spanish Trail, contains 13 units.

The Waveland Housing Authority office is located in the site one location. The office will receive a TDD machine from the grant.

The TDD machine is a telephone device, estimated at $500, which types conversation, assuring communication between the government office and hearing impaired persons.

Ladner stated the Waveland Housing Authority is presently finishing work funded through a $152,105 grant received in 1991.

According to Ladner, grant monies received this year will also be spent on 150 interior doors, replacing the most heavily damaged doors throughout the sites; replacement of roofs on all buildings at Site one; and 60 new refrigerators to be distributed by need.

All units will receive increased attic insulation and

Bay resident to teach severe weather course

"Hurricanes and Severe Weather" is the topic of a new continuing education course beginning July 7 on the Jefferson Davis Campus of Gulf Coast Community College.

The source will present information on the physical structure, formation process, movement and effects of hurricanes and the related weather phenomena associated with these storms, such as tornadoes and storm surge. Preparing for hurricane conditions on the Gulf Coast, evacuation and shelter information, and forecasting techniques will also be discussed.

The five-week course will meet on Tuesdays, 6-9 p.m. and will be taught by Bay St. Louis resident Terry Latham and Dave Reuscher; together, they have almost 50 years of experience in observing and forecasting the world's weather. Their backgrounds include assignments in the Arctic and Antarctic, as well as more tropical climates, including 20 years on the Gulf Coast.

According to the instructors, the course will be taught at a layman's level, without using any technical language and formulas.

"Our goal is to provide the average Gulf Coast resident with an opportunity to understand what makes these storms 'tick,' and the problems associated with accurately predicting their movement," said Latham.

Registration for "Hurricanes and Severe Weather" will be at 5 p.m. on the first night of the course. Cost is $25. For more information call 896-2510.

Comprettta seeks fourth term as Dist. 122 Rep.

J. P. Comprettta announced he is seeking re-election to a fourth term as State Representative from District 122.

A lifelong resident of Hancock County, Comprettta is married to the former Kay Dorich and they are parents of four children.

He is a member of the Hancock County Lions Club, University of Southern Mississippi Alumni Association and Mississippi State Bar Association.

He serves as vice-president of the Mississippi Arts Fair for the Handicapped.

He is a former school teacher, served as prosecuting attorney for Hancock County and was an assistant district attorney in the Second Judicial District, which includes Hancock, Harrison and Stone counties.

Comprettta is a graduate of Bay Senior High School and Pearl River Community College.

He holds a bachelor of science degree from the University of Southern Mississippi and a law degree from the Mississippi College Law School in Jackson.

Comprettta is presently chairman of the House Local and Private Legislation Committee and a member of the Joint Legislative Committee on Performance Evaluation and Expenditure Review (PEER), having formerly served as chairman of the PEER Committee. Other committee assignments in the House include Conservation and Water Resources; Judiciary "A"; and Ways and Means.

Comprettta represents the Mississippi House of Representatives on the Law and Justice Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures. He previously served on the National Committee on Suggested State Legislation of the Council of State Governments.

"I appreciate the confidence the people of Hancock County have placed in me, and I pledge to continue my efforts on their behalf both at home and in Jackson," stated Comprettta.

maintenance on the vo-tech center over the last three school years.

The supervisors said they would ask Dr. Ted Alexander, president of PRCC, to meet with the board on the matter.

BEACH PROJECT

Bill Mitchell presented the board with refined specifications on the county beach renourishment project.

He said the two main segments of the project comprise about 1.5 miles and will cost an estimated $1.76 million. Two other segments of beach that can be added as options to the bid contract, would boost the cost to an estimated $3.6 million, if all four beach segments are renourished.

Mitchell said October is the most probable start time for the project, which should continue about six months after it begins. In addition, the City of Bay St. Louis has asked if two other segments can be included in the project — from Bookter to the railroad bridge, and from Ulman to Bay View Court. Mitchell said the estimated extra cost would be $500,000.

He told the board the project permit would have to be modified, and costs refigured to separate the city's share from the county's.

Board president Mike Ladner asked the other supervisors how they felt about the matter; the consensus was that if the city is willing to spend the money, the supervisors had no objections to including the extra two beach segments in the project.

Concerning the recently installed beachcones in Waveland, Mitchell said he plans to have cross-sections taken each weekly to see if the sand reclamation devices are working efficiently.

Perot

is willing to get down and do the dirty work himself.

"He comes across so genuine in the media. I have seen him in recent interviews and on tapes from back in the 1960s and 1970s and he is the same guy. No one is that good of an actor to keep up the same routine for 30 years. I believe him to be the Real McCoy."

"The media has criticized him for holding back, but after reading about him, he has been that way all his life. He does nothing, until he is ready."

Johnson said he has spoken with many people who know little about Perot. "I suggest before one gives his support, he pick up a book on the man and make up his own mind."

Johnson added, to his knowledge, Perot supporters are not collecting any monies other than the one dollar per bumper sticker which covers the cost of the sticker.

"It is my prediction," the young man added, "come the Democratic and Republican conventions, you will here the same old platforms, the same old promises and see the same old results."

"You hear talk of returning to family values lately, but if you have a job, it is easier to practice family values than if you are out of work."

He said soliciting signatures has taken little effort on his part. "People just volunteer to sign. Right now we have about 3,500 signatures, when we only need 1,000."

"We have accomplished what Perot asked when he announced on Larry King Live this past spring that he would run if enough people got together and demonstrated support through ballot petition.

"These signatures do just that; should it be necessary to repeat the entire process this fall, I am confident it can be done within a few weeks."

Johnson explained, the possibility exists that the entire petition process be repeated, as current petitions name James B. Stockdale, a Perot employee, as his running mate.

Stockdale, according to Johnson, will more than likely not be Perot's running mate, as his name was a fill in, used to begin the signature drive when the campaign was still at the speculation stage.

Johnson said he is continuing his petition circulation even if the names do not count later. "The support I am gathering now will count most on November 3."

River County. This means that someone who has signed up with either company is eligible for both AAA and Mobile Medic's services.

So, someone in the north end of the county who needs an ambulance may call AAA, if he is a member of Mobile Medic and AAA's vehicle is closer.

Kellar and the other board members said they didn't know about this, and they believed many county residents don't either. The board suggested that Mobile Medic take out advertisements in the Picayune Item and The Sea Coast Echo, and send flyers out to the county residents who would benefit from the information.

"QUOTEABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The recent vandalism of two tombs in Cedar Rest Cemetery in Bay St. Louis gives one the impression that there are really some sick folks out there.

During a lifetime a person pays their dues, and it seems after death their remains should be left alone.

It really takes someone very low to break into a tomb just for the fun of it.

Over the years I have seen several grave sites that have been vandalized within our county.

I can very easily see why family members are so upset, because this is really disrespect for the dead.

I am hoping the culprit or culprits who did the damages in Cedar Rest are apprehended.

If they are caught, I am hoping the judge will think about some community service such as cutting the grass in the cemetery.

It is not too late to enjoy some very good seafood at the Our Lady of the Gulf Crab Festival or St. Rose de Lima Seafood Extravaganza which both continue today.

The Crab Festival is on Our Lady of the Gulf Church grounds, Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis, and the Seafood Extravaganza on Necessaire Avenue across from the St. Rose Catholic Church.

Live entertainment at the Crab Festival at 4:30 today features the Piney Wood Cloggers and at 6 p.m. The Nighthawks Band.

St. Rose's entertainment schedules the "Mixx" media productions at 6 p.m. and the AZE band at 8 p.m.

Reports I have received indicate some very nice fish have been caught and are on display at the Annual Mississippi Deep Sea Rodeo at Rice Pavilion in Gulfport.

The awarding of the final prizes is to take place at 6:30 p.m. today with the rodeo closing at midnight.

A local group, Keith Hoda and The Country Sounds Band are scheduled at 8 tonight at the fishing rodeo.

July 4th

Former Bay resident is proud to be an American

By Vickie M. Young

On May 30, 1989, while I was at work in my office in Tianjin, the People's Republic of China, I received a phone call from my father asking me to come home. My mother was dying of cancer and she had little time left.

Through great perseverance and persistence, I was able to obtain a seat on a plane leaving the next day (I had already had an open ticket going to the States). A friend was even able to get a taxi to take me to the international airport in the capital city of Beijing, a four-hour drive away.

I consider getting the plane ticket and the taxi on such short notice quite miraculous due to the civil unrest which was rampant in Beijing at the time.

Student demonstrations were everywhere, Tiananmen Square was filled with hunger strikers, the rail system was jammed with people going to Beijing (where Tiananmen is located) to participate in the democracy movement, foreigners such as myself were leaving the country in droves in order to avoid any type of military action, and troops were stationed all over the outskirts of the city. Amidst this chaos, I was able to leave quietly at 4 in the morning.

I reached Mississippi the evening of June 1. On June 3 and 4, I watched in shock and horror, along with the rest of the world, as tanks rolled over the remnants of defiance in Beijing. For the time being Chinese independent spirits were crushed.

I didn't celebrate the 4th of July that year. My mother died on July 2nd and my family and I buried her on America's Independence Day. It was real freedom for her to be released from the pain she had been in, but the rest of us didn't feel very free—we were chained by grief and bound by time that would need to pass before healing could take place.

I returned to China in August of 1989 and threw myself headlong into work and studying the language. I made many wonderful friends among that international community in which I lived. I learned to laugh and to cry and to lean upon others. I learned the true meaning of living in a multi-cultural situation and the flexibility required for harmony.

On July 4, 1990, one year after my mother's funeral and 13 months after the Tiananmen incident, I went to the American Embassy in Beijing to celebrate my country's successful bid for democracy.

The Embassy personnel staged a wonderful celebration complete with a barber shop quartet and, believe it or not, Big Macs, french fries and Coca Colas from McDonalds in Hong Kong! They shipped in a contingent of people to cook us Americans a taste of home. The Golden Arches, an American icon, never looked so good, nor was fast food ever welcomed more!

At sundown, the two or three hundred people who were at the celebration gathered around the flagpole and sang that song with the impossible range, The Star Spangled Banner. There were no fireworks, only tears running down our faces.

We realized that freedom was something that people had died for, in order for us, generations later, to be able to stand and sing without fear of oppression. Later, I explained the meaning of our national anthem's first verse to a foreign friend who didn't understand all the words: "Can you see it? Can you see the flag? Last night, it was still there! All through the night, as bombs were exploding and as flares burst in the air, I could see glimpses of it. I could see it over the fort walls, but now I can't tell if it is still there. Can you see it? Can you see if the flag still stands? Does it still wave? Is it still there for this land of free people? Is it still their for the brave land? Can you see it?"

I could see it clearly on July 4, 1990. Standing on a small patch of American soil in Communist China, I could see it. And I was proud to be an American. May freedom ring for all people.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Use of drugs leads to loss of family, home, friends

Dear Editor,

Please give me a few minutes of your time to tell your citizens about my so-called good trip on drugs.

I was a middle class white male with a beautiful family, great job with a bright future. I smoked marijuana on the weekends. I'd seen others using harder drugs and how it was destroying their lives. I'd always tell myself, "Not me," for I was too strong and had complete control over my life and use of drugs.

But several months later I awoke in a cold and lonely prison cell with 30 years to serve. I beat the steel bars and concrete walls with my fists until they bled. For the first time in my life I found myself alone in a world of hate and loneliness. I had lost my family and the people I thought were my friends.

For Christmas I lie in my prison cell wondering if my children had something for Christmas, yearning to hear their little feet running across the floor, to see their smiling faces, hear their laughter and little squeals of delight as they open their presents, as they turn around to hug their father and not find him there, wondering what they were told why their father couldn't be with them.

I know as you read this you are also telling yourself, "Not me." Please believe me, it can happen to you if you use drugs! I'm not saying this because of something someone told me or from something I've read. I'm speaking from cold, hard experience, a nightmare that I live every day. It doesn't only destroy your life, it hurts the people who love you the most and the ones you love dearly.

Bush, Quayle make great comedy team

To the Editor:

George Bush and Dan Quayle remind me of W.C. Fields. Fields had a wonderful comic trick of blaming everything on anybody that tried to make the situation better.

He'd kick Baby Leroy all over the room (the once put gin in Baby Leroy's bottle, and when the kid passed out, Fields accused him of being a bad actor), and he'd cuss out old ladies when it was all his fault.

It's wonderful comedy, of course, but it's lousy politics. But we have more important things to think about than national politics: I don't personally think the young skinny Elvis stamp should have won; or the old, fat Elvis stamp, either.

I think there should have been a third option: a stamp depicting the still-alive Elvis, balding and middle-aged selecting socks at the K-mart.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

Filling the void

Over the last three months Mississippi has lost three outstanding business leaders—Bill Crabbill of Mraks, Howard Lewis of Greenwood and, most recently, J. C. Redd of Jackson.

These names should be familiar to most Mississippians because they leave a legacy of leadership and commitment to this state that is rare in this day and time. Each of these men, both individually and in cooperation with others, dedicated himself to helping Mississippi measure up to its full potential.

Bill Crabbill was a leader in the fight for gubernatorial succession in the early 1970s, calling for this measure 10 years before it ever came to fruition. He was also instrumental in setting up the Merit Program for Counties, which the U.S. Chamber of Commerce described as "one of the most comprehensive county development programs in the nation."

Nearly 19,000 high school seniors and teachers across Mississippi have benefited from the work of Howard Lewis through his leadership in the creation of the STAR Program, which recognizes scholastic achievement. His dedication to recognizing Mississippi's best in education is now in its 27th year, with over 300 participating high schools from around the state.

J. C. Redd created the Mississippi Christian Foundation and Sunnyside Children's Home. He also initiated The J. C. and Annie Redd Leadership Mississippi Program, which helps young Mississippians develop their leadership skills for the benefit of the entire state.

Each of these three outstanding men shared another common bond—they served as chairman of the Mississippi Economic Council.

The loss of these men has left a void in Mississippi. It will be up to a new generation to see that the leadership void is filled.

Tougher penalties face drunk drivers

Drunk and drugged drivers in Mississippi will face up to 25 years in prison, forfeiture of vehicles, up to $5,000 in fines and the loss of drivers' licenses under a revision of the state drunk and drugged driving laws now in effect.

"Each year, drunk and drugged driving accounts for nearly half of Mississippi highway fatalities," said Donald O'Cain, director of the Department of Public Safety's Division of Public Safety Planning.

Any person operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or other drugs, and causing the death or serious injury of another person, faces up to 25 years in prison. Prior to the revised legislation, the penalty was up to 10 years in prison.

The new act provides for the discretionary seizure and forfeiture of a motor vehicle being driven by a person convicted of a third or subsequent violation of the Mississippi Implied Consent Law.

For any such conviction within a period of five years, the driver is deemed guilty of a felony, fined not less than $2,000 nor more than $5,000 and will be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than five years in the state penitentiary. The individual also faces the prospect of having his or her driver's license suspended for five years.

It is illegal in Mississippi to drive with a blood alcohol content of .10 percent or more. The revised legislation broadens the definition of "driving under the influence" (DUI) to include driving under the influence of any drug or controlled substance, the possession of which is unlawful under the Mississippi Controlled Substances Law.

Still another feature of the new legislation is that out-of-state DUI convictions will be counted for purposes of determining if a Mississippi conviction is a second or subsequent conviction.

Persons convicted of a second DUI offense within a period of five years from the first conviction will be fined not less than $600 or no more than $1,500, be imprisoned not less than 10 days nor more than one year and sentenced to community service work for not less than 10 days nor more than one year.

First offenders also will face tougher penalties. They will be fined not less than $250 nor more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than 48 hours or both.

They also face the prospect of having their drivers' licenses suspended for a period of not less than 90 days. All first offenders must complete a state-approved alcohol safety education program.

A loophole in other recent DUI legislation was closed by the requirement that the DUI charge will not be reduced to a lesser charge for any person driving with a blood alcohol content of .10 percent or more.

State funds, he continued, are paid by the degree of certification as well as number of years of experience. Those replacing retirees may earn a lower salary; therefore the state allotment is less to the district.

Funds expected to increase, compared to 1992, are: student activities $123,003, up $42,348; Chapter I Program $493,276, up $38,987;

Public law (special education) 1992 $91,176, up $22,776; food services $602,302, up $20,784; extended school year (special education) $18,485, up $11,461; public law (special education) 91 carry over $14,302, up $9,185; vocational $16,862, up $1,470; and summer school $6,967, up $967.

In addition to the four tax act funds, the 1993 budget includes additional revenue through a pre-school carry over fund of $8,789 and $16,698 in Eisenhower Grant (math and science), and new expenditures of $513,177 in debt services.

Capital expenditure projects (new buildings) were last seen on the Bay-Waveland budget in fiscal year 1991 when $658,452 was budgeted.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

The Fourth of July barbecue is as traditionally American as apple pie and all that, perhaps even more so; and you may be sure that those smoke signals will be flying all along our Coast on the Festive Fourth!

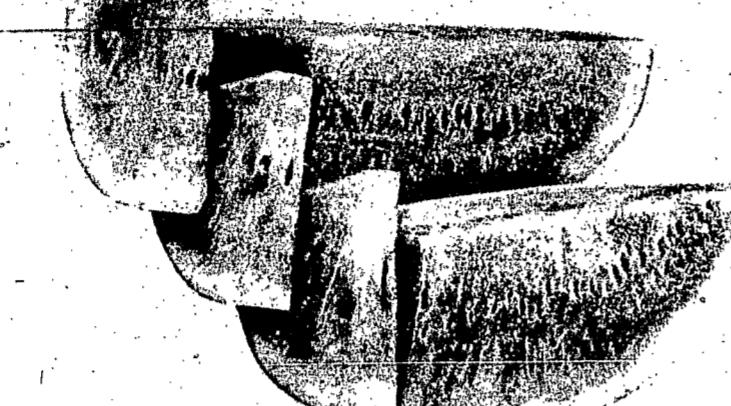

Perhaps it's a legacy from the Father of Our Country himself, George Washington mentioned barbecues in his diaries. Although he referred to mammoth outdoor gatherings, political or otherwise, at which whole sides of beef were roasted over open pits, our barbecue feasts of today range from very small gatherings around small hibachis or grills to huge parties with lavish displays and all sorts of barbecue equipment.

In these days of inflation or deflation or whatever you wish to call 'em, there won't be too many of us cooking huge steaks or other top cuts of meat; but there's always chicken and pork and good old hamburgers and hot dogs, and seafood is especially tasty over the charcoal fires.

Speaking of inflationary times, did you know that Benjamin Franklin is said to have started the Fourth of July picnic since his budget, official or otherwise, did not run to a lavish seated banquet, he served the crowd a sort of stand-up, manage-your-own-plate buffet.

or barbecue tradition as a "pinch the pennies measure" when he was serving our country in France and wanted to "throw a party" to celebrate the Fourth?

I like that casual attitude—just think how all those proper Parisians must have reacted all those long years ago!

Whatever you choose for the grill or barbecue pit, chances are that you'll finish off with that favorite of favorites for a sizzling summer day—watermelon! There's something special about cooking and eating outdoors, and winding up the cookout with a watermelon feast.

And, after everyone has feasted on slices or chunks of melon this fourth of July, or at any other time for the matter, let's put what's left to good and tasty use. The rind, of course, makes delicious pickles. Small pieces make a tasty dessert, as in:

WATERMELON CUP

2 cups diced watermelon

1 cup sherry

Granulated sugar

Sprinkle sugar over watermelon pieces, pour the sherry over and refrigerate for an hour or so. A tasty finale to a summer supper! Increase quantities as needed.

mercially purchased packs.

To make at home, fill milk or 2-liter soft drink containers with water and freeze. Be sure and leave several inches of headspace to allow the water to expand as it freezes. Allow several days for the container to freeze solid.

The cooler can be packed with lean meats, low-fat cheeses and spreads, and whole grain breads with a knife and cutting board. Fresh fruits and vegetables can be included. Chilled milk, cold fruit juices and ice water also can be included.

Be sure all foods are thoroughly chilled prior to placing them in the cooler. This will increase the cooling efficiency of the cooler. All these foods together make for the right ingredients for a delightful picnic at a scenic roadside park and a much needed break in the travel.

Include a supply of healthful snacks that do not require refrigeration in the goodie bag. Dried fruits, air-popped popcorn, pretzels and dry cereals (by themselves or mixed together) make great munchies.

Avoid foods that need to be kept hot. If the travel is long, it can be difficult to keep hot foods at a temperature appropriate to maintain safety. Hot foods must be kept at a temperature above 140 degrees F.

Suggestions for placing hot foods on the car engine are potentially dangerous and not recommended. If your family enjoys a hot meal during their travel, take a break and stop at

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

It is so routine, so taken-for-granted, so easy for us to sing, "Oh beautiful for spacious skies, for amber waves of grain, for purple mountain majesties across the fruited plain," we forget that most peoples cannot sing this.

Around all too much of the world, especially in Africa, the book of Genesis is as real and active today as it was in the time of Joseph in the Old Testament:

"When the famine has ravaged the land, no trace of the abundance will be found in the land because of the famine that follows it—so utterly severe will that famine be... All the world came to Joseph to obtain rations of grain, for famine had gripped the whole world" (Gn. 41:30-31, 57).

Ten countries of southern Africa are facing crop losses of 50 to as high as 90 percent. Normally Africa's largest grain producers, Zimbabwe and South Africa are among the hardest hit by a drought which threatens to become famine.

By contrast, our bad years in the bread basket areas of the United States still bring in a distinct surplus of those grains which are hardest hit by drought. In many parts of Africa and the world, our bad years would be good years.

That, obviously, is very difficult for the average American to imagine. Any harvest below 50 percent of the usual would look like a crop disaster to us, but would be a welcome sight and blessing to so many people in so many countries.

Every single day of the year, but particularly when we celebrate the birthday of our country, we should give thanks to God for the fruited plain, for a land so free, so fertile, so full of opportunity and so blessed with friendly weather.

Complacency easily overtakes us in the United States, because crops and cattle grow here with such ease and sometimes intensity that our main problems usually center around what to do with surplus millions of tons of wheat and butter.

Mind you, the comparison here is to the countries in the southern part of Africa which normally grow most of the grain on the entire continent. This comparison is bad enough.

However, the central and northern parts of Africa are not even brought into the equation. Suffice it to say the Sahara

A God-sent fruited plain

Desert, as spacious as the lower 48 of the United States, is producing practically nothing.

If Americans have problems conceiving the stunning difference between the harvests of southern Africa and those of the United States, how can they begin to compare their crops with the almost total wipeout of grain in Subsaharan countries?

When we Americans kneel to pray and give thanks to God, can we bring ourselves to realize that dying cattle in the Subsahara eat mud because there is no water?

As we take ourselves to God in prayer, can we reach the painful awareness that countless people in that same region are too weak to swat the filthy flies away from their faces?

In the midst of our loud complaints about the White House and local governments, do we pause to give thanks for living in the most stable and the most free country on the planet? It is reasonable to be a loyal opposition and yet thankful.

Thank God frequently each day for our fruited plain, for the unmatched real estate to which we have fallen heir, and for the opportunity to do as Joseph of Egypt did.

THEIR LEGACY WAS THE FREEDOM OF OUR GREAT COUNTRY

God grants liberty only to those who are always ready to guard and defend it.
—Daniel Webster

Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof.
—Leviticus 25:10

Let's celebrate, but not forget
We owe them a tremendous debt:
Those men who risked all and signed
That piece of paper which defined
The reasons for their great demand
For independence of our land.
This document for all to see
Forever lives in history;
And yet, the freedom that we gained
Must be eternally maintained,
With our alertness as the cost,
So what they gave us won't be lost.
The lessons of our faith portray
The gratitude we should convey:
To thank them for their legacy:
Our precious land of liberty.

Steamboats

New photo exhibit on display at Bay St. Louis City Hall

"Steamboating in Style," a photographic exhibit reflecting the glory days of steamboating opens Tuesday, July 7 in the Council Chambers of Bay St. Louis City Hall. The exhibit will hang through Aug. 30.

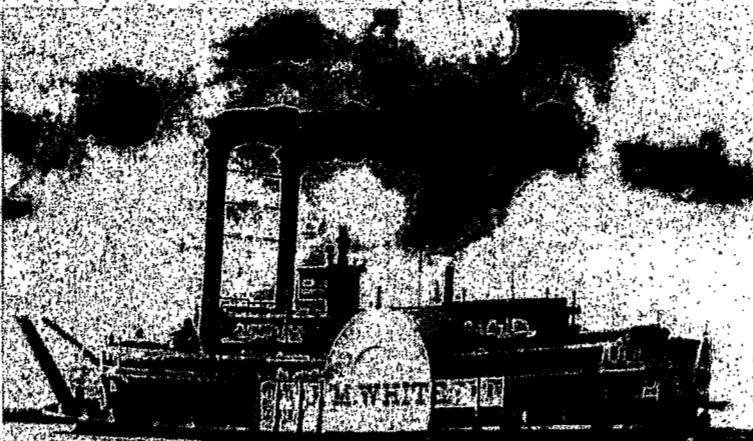

The exhibit, which incorporates 40 photographs, depicts life on the steamboats from cargo carrying to elegant socializing. In 1811 the steamboat made its debut in Mississippi. Transporting cargo, particularly cotton, was the main business of boats on the river. However, during the off-season steamboats would lure passengers aboard with unsurpassed luxury.

Many travelers from both sides of the Mason Dixon Line enjoyed excursions on the Mississippi River aboard steamboats such as the grand J. M. White.

These "floating palaces" continued to gain popularity until the outbreak of the Civil War. However, after the war and up until the early 1900's, steamboats again reigned over the river enjoying a new golden age.

The photographs in this exhibit are from the Norman Collection owned by Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Gandy of Natchez. The public is invited to view "Steamboating in Style," an exhibit which was produced by the staff of the State Historical Museum in Jackson. The museum is a division of the Department of Archives and History.

Mike Cuevas, special projects coordinator for the city, said, "This exhibit will be as popular as the Children of Natchez exhibit. Terrific photographs, great graphics and an interesting text create a wonderful atmosphere of nostalgia. Steamboat travel must have been great fun."

"Steamboating in Style," a traveling exhibit, sponsored by the State Historical Museum, will be featured in the Bay St. Louis City Hall Council Chambers July 7 through August 30.

Healthy tomato plants need fertilizer, care

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," or "there's always next year." That's the advice given to gardeners when talking about the epidemic of tomato spotted wilt virus sweeping Mississippi.

Some gardeners have lost every tomato plant to the disease, and with tomatoes being the most popular garden vegetable, we're talking about a major problem.

If a gardener's tomato plants have been lucky enough to escape the disease so far, the gardener is still worried and should be. While many tomato diseases can be controlled by planting resistant varieties or an appropriate fungicide, spotted wilt virus has no known effective control measures except to remove plants from the garden as soon as they show symptoms.

After removing plants, take a chance and start over with new plants or start plants from seed for a late crop. This disease is spread by thrips, so it is not carried in the garden soil or on the tomato cages or stakes.

While there is no guarantee that late plants won't also come down with the disease, the only chance you have to harvest tomatoes from your garden is to keep planting.

Don't forget to spray for other tomato diseases while watching for symptoms of spotted wilt virus. Wouldn't it be a shame to lose tomatoes to early blight or septoria leaf spot while waiting for spotted wilt virus to develop? The Garden Tabloid, available at all county Extension offices, contains information on vigorous and growing while a heavy load and fruit is developing. Calcium nitrate is a preferred fertilizer for side-dressing garden tomatoes, but ammonium nitrate can be used. Remember, calcium nitrate contains only half as much nitrogen as ammonium nitrate so the application rates differ.

Placement of the side-dressing fertilizer is important. Never get it on the leaves. Place the fertilizer in a band on either side of the plant and several inches from the base.

controlling other diseases and insect pests.

Continue pruning and tying plants to keep the plants from becoming masses of branches and small fruit that will never get very large and to keep the plants and fruit off the ground.

Side-dressing with a source of nitrogen will keep the plants mulched with an organic mulch such as pine needles, apply the side-dressing fertilizer on top or under the mulch.

Where plastic mulch was used, punch holes in the plastic for applying the dry fertilizer, or dissolve the fertilizer in water and apply it through the holes.

Don't expect miracles from fertilizer. Tomato plants that have turned yellow as a result of lack of fertilizer or a specific nutrient aren't likely to turn green overnight.

If you don't see immediate results, don't apply additional fertilizer thinking the plants need more. Yellow leaves aren't likely to turn green, so watch the new growth and see if it isn't healthier and greener.

Epsom salts, a good source of magnesium for tomato plants, won't cure blossom-end-rot. Spraying the leaves with a strong solution of epsom salts will burn the leaves as will spraying the leaves with a strong solution of calcium chloride to correct a calcium deficiency and blossom-end-rot. Pouring a strong solution around the roots can burn the roots.

Follow directions when mixing water-soluble fertilizers for applying to the leaves or soil. Pre-packaged water-soluble fertilizers for hose and applicators are supposed to be diluted enough, so there is no risk of burning the leaves.

Keep your tomato plants mulched to conserve soil moisture, to control weeds and to keep soil and disease-bearing soil particles from splashing up on the plants and the developing tomato fruit.
